unless you've been hiding under a very big rock, you already know that top chef winner and former owner of scylla stephanie izard is set to open girl & the goat. between the videos, wandering goat dinners, guest appearances, tweets and T-shirts, the cat, er goat, has been out of the bag for a while.

and finally, it seems the long wait for the 7,400-square-foot resto is over. featuring a "rustic décor with a bit of badass," izard says. (translation: antique fireboxes, reclaimed jar lights, chunky butcher block tables, and clay walls from chicago-based designers 555 international) the west loop eatery will spotlight food inspired by spain, italy and southeast asia—think lamb-stuffed calamari, ham frites, soft shell crabs with semolina dumplings—and, obvi, plenty of goat dishes, like smoked goat flatbread and goat porterhouse. the craft beer list is all north american, and if you're an oenophile, be on the lookout for the wine izard created with a vintner friend in walla walla.

goat things come to those who wait. girl & the goat. 809 west randolph street. at halsted. 312.494.6262. opens end of june. www.girlandthegoat.com
